In one of the most difficult fiscal environments in current history, the Denver City Council is identifying key principles and priorities to support the complex decisions necessary during the 2010 budget cycle. Requiring efficiency and accountability in all City departments, maintaining core services, and aligning expenditures with the City’s basic needs will be the focus for this year’s budget.

The Council is reaffirming five areas of concentration where they will prioritize their leadership efforts in 2010:

- Economic and environmental sustainability – Capitalizing on federal stimulus funding, the Council encourages economic development investments that will implement existing plans. Job creation should be the top focus as resources are directed in ways that will make the economy and environment sustainable for years to come.

- Neighborhoods – Strong recreation, library, and cultural opportunities take on renewed significance in tough economic times as Council strives to prioritize people over things and stabilize distressed Denver neighborhoods. Council supports efforts that foster community pride and on June 13th at 9:00 a.m. in the Colorado Free University's (CFU) meeting room in the converted Lowry Theater. Even though LUN is to attend a theatrical performances at the John Hand Theater, Kurtzman, with Lowry United Neighborhoods (LUN), gave a hearty welcome and invited INC to come back again. Helen Hand, President of CFU, invited the INC to have their meeting at the CFU (FreeU.com). Helen is the sister of John Hand who founded the CFU in 1987 spawned from the Denver Free University (DFU). The original DFU represented the free speech movement that came out of Denver University to create an opportunity for people to be free to teach and free to learn without a formal university structure. CFU’s different philosophy was that communities have within them the people and resources to solve their own problems. Hooking those people up enriches the community. Without creating an educational model, people propose affordable courses that they are interested in teaching. CFU started on Colfax and York. When Lowry opened for development, John Hand came over and turned this Fire Station into a satellite school, sold their Colfax location, and moved to the happy, vibrant, and beautiful Lowry location.

Finally, the City’s new Zoning Code will consume much of the energy and attention of the Council in the next six months. Setting an ambitious goal of adopting the new code by year’s end, Council recognizes that citizens must receive adequate information and continue to give feedback about this effort. Passage will culminate years of study and input from thousands of residents on a new land use vision for Denver. The draft code and information on public meetings is available at www.newcodedenver.org

Delegates Meeting Recap
By Fran Rew

INC Chair, Karen Cuthbertson called the meeting to order on June 13th at 9:00 a.m. in the in the Colorado Free University’s (CFU) meeting room in the converted Lowry Firehouse that also includes the John Hand Theater. Sally Kurtzman, with Lowry United Neighborhoods (LUN), gave a hearty welcome and invited INC to come back again to attend a theatrical performances at the John Hand Theater. Even though LUN is a new RNO, their delegates wore attractive LUN tee-shirts so that we could recognize the people who could tell us more about their area. LUN president Jay Clapper told us that, after growing up near a Denver park, he enjoyed the design of walking and playing areas at Lowry.

Helen Hand, President of CFU, invited the INC to have their meeting at the CFU (FreeU.com). Helen is the sister of John Hand who founded the CFU in 1987 spawned from the Denver Free University (DFU). The original DFU represented the free speech movement that came out of Denver University to create an opportunity for people to be free to teach and free to learn without a formal university structure. CFU’s different philosophy was that communities have within them the people and resources to solve their own problems. Hooking those people up enriches the community. Without creating an educational model, people propose affordable courses that they are interested in teaching. CFU started on Colfax and York. When Lowry opened for development, John Hand came over and turned this Fire Station into a satellite school, sold their Colfax location, and moved to the happy, vibrant, and beautiful Lowry location.
decline is less than the state and regional numbers and is better than other large cities in the country.

Kelly explained that, this summer, the budget team is coming back to the City to ask for help making trade-off decisions. City staff is service-oriented and, if there are layoffs, the service will suffer. We asked our workers; they prefer across-the-board cuts to layoffs. The City workforce is trying to come together to continue providing services. Call us regularly to share feedback so that we can know what we are getting right and wrong.

A question and answer session followed.

Q: Do you get any impact from the stimulus package?

A: Kelly answered that $52 million of stimulus money is designated for Denver. This money may be used as a safety-net stimulus to help the unemployed.

Q: How about asking the communities to volunteer to do some of the work?

A: Other cities have asked their communities but not everyone responds favorably to this request.

Q: Do we have a list of programs that we could go through for prioritization or elimination?

A: Yes. The book that lists all those programs is huge. There are 29 recreation centers in our system; some are very busy with many amenities while others have few amenities. When we made cuts in the past, we cut all the hours in the system. Is that the better approach or do we take a recreation center offline to save? It starts to focus in one area. If you live in the neighborhood, you would say “Heck no!” to closing a recreation center. If you do not live there you would say “Brilliant!”

Q: What about the stadium tax?

A: 15 groups are talking about extending the stadium tax.

Denver’s City budget is posted online, with 75-percent of the General Fund budget going to operational expenses and 70-percent of the total City budget going to labor costs.

Q: One delegate asked the City to move from thinking of budget short falls as an either/or option to something in-between. For example, “What is it going to cost to create a citizens’ corps, perhaps attaching to the greenprintdenver.org initiative to mobilize at a neighborhood level?”

A: The City would consider delivering services through sources that may not be from the City.

Kelly emphasized that the question of the policy for City budget reduction focused on whether to make targeted specific reductions or reductions across the board. She said there is a $70 million gap. Where are the other $40 million going to come from?

One delegate mentioned that the City Assessor Office records are not up-to-date and that getting these records up-to-date could potentially make millions of dollars for the City. Kelly responded that although this could help, property tax is but 7-percent of the City’s total income.

Another INC member recommended that a city or state accounting office be authorized to investigate the potential for reducing unemployment and increasing sales tax revenue by creating a customized city or state version of the 75-year-old WIR Bank accounting system in Switzerland. The YouTube video about this system looked like a convincing tool to pull people out of hard times. Kelly responded that she did not know enough about this option to comment at this time.

After the agenda break, Marcia Johnson, Councilwoman for District 5, invited everyone to sign up for her e-newsletter. Marcia explained that at this time, only councilpersons have the new Zoning Code map to verify whether the map reflects the current district. She asked RNOs to designate a liaison to check these new Zoning Code maps with their councilperson to see if the map is correct, explaining that it is not always correct. No one is better for checking these maps than the RNO liaisons. (Editor’s Note: Some draft maps are now available at www.newcodedenver.org/rezoning/page/the-draft-code-and-draft-map.)

James Mejia, CEO of Denver Preschool Program (DPP), and his two five-year-old daughters introduced the success of the DPP (dpp.org). The reasons that Denver residents voted for DPP include the following facts: 80-percent of brain growth happens between birth and 5 years of age. In 2009, one of three students is not ready for kindergarten. That readiness-gap widens with every school year. DPP succeeds at getting children to start on an equal footing.

Lower income families represent 65-percent of all the DPP participants. If Head Start were available, these families would qualify. Every family is eligible for a sliding-scale benefit based on the Qualistar rating of the program where your child is enrolled. If a program were rated zero-stars, the highest amount a family would receive would be $57 per month. If it were rated three-stars, that family would receive $87 per month. This gives parents a choice and provides a way to fill the gap between what they need and what they have.

DPP started in November of 2007 with 66 kids; now DPP has over 5,400 students. DPP started with less than 20 schools and now has over 120 throughout Denver. Many of the DPP students will enter DPS. By third-grade, DPP will compare their DPP students’ CSAP scores with the scores of children who did not participate in the DPP.

DPP’s Jan Thomas invited the INC delegates to go online or ask her for a DPP brochure, articles, and ads to include in their meetings, newsletters, and emails.

Robert (Bob) Musgraves, Executive Director of Historic Denver (HD), introduced us to HD’s mission of preservation solutions to sustain and strengthen communities. Founded in 1970 with its first success saving the Molly Brown House, HD is an independent nonprofit organization with over 700 members. Since then it has grown into an advocacy organization.

Bob explained that the intent of Amendment 50, which voters approved in the 2008 election, was not carried out. Instead of increasing the State Historical Fund through limited gaming revenues, it decreased historic funds and appropriated more funds for the State’s community colleges.

Current HD activities include advocacy for the mosaic tiles along the 16th Street mall. HD is helping the City find the money and the best solution for preserving these tiles, using an advocacy instead of an obstructionist approach. The new Zoning Code as presently drafted will allow tall buildings in the Crestmoor and Hilltop neighborhoods; HD is not sure that that is a sensible approach.

Annie Levinsky, HD Deputy Director and Director of the Molly Brown House Museum, said that the Molly Brown House Museum (MBHM) has become a substantial tourist destination. In addition to offering tours seven days a week in summer and 6 days a week the rest of the year, the MBHM also offers educational outreach programs to schools.

Alice talked about a grant for a citywide historical properties survey. It is important because the approach to preservation tends to be reactive to an imminent threat instead of proactive. Using standing committees called neighborhood liaison committees, HD is looking to build a better bond with RNOs to let HD know what historic buildings matter to the RNOs.

Other HD programs include their Sacred Landmarks Program that has worked with nearly 50 landmarks including the Central Presbyterian Church that administers a homeless program.

The HD Education Program includes their Lego City program that asks children to design a city. Then the children decide where to build new structures over their old Lego structures

HD’s newest program is their Denver Story Trek, an innovative bike tour enhanced with recorded information about each site. Visitors can get information about these sites from their cell phones.

Alice Gilberston, HD Director of Advocacy, told INC that a week ago, the State Historic Fund gave HD a grant, in partnership with the City of Denver, for a Denver historic survey. Out of Denver’s 175,000 residential and commercial structures etcetera, 4-percent of the structures are historic. Not a lot is known about 95-percent of the 7,000 historic structures in Denver. Denver does not have a budget for researching these historic structures. The reason this research has not been done is that, in the past, it was cost prohibitive but now, with Google Earth and other Internet connections, it is more cost effective.

After historic research, more information will be available to identify what is ripe for redevelopment. We do not know what has been lost in the city. Survey Los Angeles is planning to survey 900,000 properties by 2012. They are tying it into the development of their neighborhood plans.

Cari Jimenez, Community Resource Officer for Virginia Village Police District 3, reported on the crime statistics for Lowry saying that Lowry is getting hit hard with theft from motor vehicles. Karen Cuthbertson added that District 4’s rate for theft from automobiles went up about 51-percent.

Parks Ad Contract Resolution: A number of INC delegates spoke up to say that they recognized the need for cities to pay for park maintenance but that advertising in parks was not their preferred option because it sets a dangerous precedent. In meetings with the Denver Parks and Recreation Department, several delegates expressed that they heard verbally, but not in writing, that a contract for advertising in City parks already existed. The delegates felt that it was not fair that they should have to battle every single move by the City toward privatization.

A motion was made to amend the INC Parks and Recreation Committee’s “Parks Ad Contract Resolution” as printed in the June INC newsletter. After discussion, the Amendment failed with 9 in favor and 13 opposed. Mr. Ambrose offered a friendly amendment keeping in the name “Poo Free Parks” but taking Mr. Airy’s name out. The vote on the INC Parks and Recreation Advertising Contract Resolution passed as amended 17 in favor, three opposed, and five abstentions.

Dog Park Statement. There was discussion about alternative means for raising revenue for City parks including perhaps raising revenue through dog permits. It was noted that other jurisdictions do not charge for dog parks. The INC delegates approved the Dog Park Statement printed in the INC newsletter with 18 in favor, none opposed, and six abstentions.

Committee Reports:
Zoning and Planning: Mike Henry, Chair of the INC Zoning and Planning Committee, encouraged every single neighborhood group to keep close attention to the draft of the new Zoning Code. Open the Zoning Code online one chapter at a time. There will be a discussion about general ideas and the environmental issues in two weeks. Mike said, “We have been studying this for four years. Please encourage your members and your zoning experts to participate.”

Education Committee: Brad Zieg mentioned that eight more schools are on the chopping block. Let Billie Bramhall know if you are interested in the meetings coming up.

Public Safety: Anthony Thomas is on the HALO Committee, awaiting the first meeting.

Transportation Committee: Nothing reported.

Dollar Dictionary Drive: INC has enough money to buy dictionaries for the third-graders in the Denver Public Schools but not enough to include a thesaurus. Donations are down drastically. We need $8,000 to get both dictionaries and thesauruses. As in past years, the August INC meeting is reserved for labeling and packing books for distribution to schools. Check the INC website for updates on location.

Karen Cuthbertson and the Executive Committee members asked the INC delegates to ask, at their next RNO meeting, for volunteer grant writers to staff a proposed Grant Writing Committee to help write grants for next year’s Dollar Dictionary Drive.

The meeting was adjourned at 12:00 noon.

Executive Committee Recap
By Fran Rew

Karen Cuthbertson, INC Chair, called the meeting to order on Monday, June 8th, 7:00 p.m., at 1201 Williams Street. Other Executive Committee (EC) members present were Larry Ambrose, Ray Ehrenstein, Anthony Thomas, Penelope Zeller, and Brad Zieg. Also present were Zoning and Planning Committee Chair Mike Henry, Membership and Newsletter Chair Ken Beaudrie, Parks and Recreation Committee Co-Chair Katie Fisher, and Assistant to the Secretary, Fran Rew.

A motion to approve the minutes of the May EC meeting was passed by acclamation.

Treasurer’s Report: The May 31st ending balance for all accounts was $26,022.79 with $7,365.81 of this ending balance in the Dollar Dictionary Drive account.

Committee Reports:
Dollar Dictionary Drive (DDD). Steve Nissen, Chair of the DDD Committee, could not be present but sent a written report. The projected third-grade enrollment for the 2009 Denver Public School system is 5,989 students. Steve encouraged the INC Executive Committee members and delegates to continue to aim for the July financial goal for giving each of these third-graders a free dictionary and thesaurus this year.

In July, the EC will decide whether there is enough money to include a thesaurus with each dictionary. Based on INC’s current inventory of dictionaries and thesauruses, the INC DDD Committee needs to raise an additional $4,983.72 by this July to be able to distribute thesaurus with the dictionaries. Send an e-mail to Steve at pennisen@cs.com with contact information for individuals and groups you think would like to receive a digital and/or a hard copy of the DDD brochure. Mail donations to Steve at P.O. Box 18347, Denver, 80218. The Executive Committee members have made their contributions of money and fund raising efforts. Steve encouraged us saying, “We can do it. YES WE CAN.”

Education: No new updates.

Membership: Committee Chair Ken Beaudrie reported that there are 72 members, 16 being patrons and 26 associates, 12 being patrons.

Newsletter: No new updates.

Parks and Recreation (P&R): Co-chair Larry Ambrose reported on the committee’s plans for a public hearing on the topic of the health standards for gray-water use for the lakes and irrigation systems in Denver’s city parks. Adrienne Anderson, a former Environmental Studies instructor at the University of Colorado at Boulder, agreed to present reports of evidence of toxic waste in the gray water in use by Denver’s park water system.

Larry invited seven different city, state, and federal entities to refute the reports of toxic waste in Denver’s park water system and all refused to join a public panel discussion on this topic, claiming that they had already adequately addressed this concern online. As a result, P&R will temporarily abandon their efforts to create a bilateral representation for this topic and will accept Adrienne Anderson’s offer to present these reports and include co-sponsorship for this public hearing by an additional concerned environmental group. The date for this public hearing will be set at the next P&R monthly meeting on Tuesday, June 16th.

Larry pointed out that Westward was quite thorough in representing the gray-water issue back in 2000 and 2002.

The P&R committee is working to establish collaboration with the INC task force members to create effective INC representation for the Denver P&R meetings concerning advertising attached to “Dog Pooh Bag Dispensers” in the parks. The primary question for this task force is to answer the question of having a “free or fee dog park master plan.” The City is facing financial difficulties and is looking for ways to economize.

Zoning and Planning (ZAP): Chair Mike Henry announced an upcoming ZAP meeting on June 27th. The third draft of the Zoning Code Update is now online. Below the “View the Code” link are the individual article links. There is also a comment feature that the Zoning Department will be cataloguing and reviewing. The next ZAP committee meeting will be focusing on environmental sustainability.

Public Safety: The first H.A.L.O committee meeting has not been scheduled. Ernie Martinez, the Lieutenant in charge of HALO, has been out of town. The District Com-
Transportation: No new update.

Old Business:

Audit: The INC Bylaws call for an annual financial audit by an INC committee of three appointed by the Chair. A question arose concerning whether this internal audit would be sufficient to enhance INC’s success in applying for grants. INC Chair Karen Cuthbertson checked with two CPA sources and they both stated that the IRS Form 990 would be a sufficient document for seeking grants and that, based on INC’s budget and internal procedures, a $5,000 CPA audit was unnecessary. The INC Executive Committee approved using the IRS Form 990 documentation for grant submissions.

Membership Renewal: Calls have been made to request membership renewal and invoices have been sent out.

Web Site Redesign: Karen lost the INC web site sample that she had when her computer was stolen. Ken created a web design about three years ago and it may need to be modernized. Some suggest that it is an improvement over what INC has now; it will be considered for implementation.

The need to create distinct, identically formatted email addresses for INC Executive Committee members to clearly differentiate their personal correspondence from INC correspondence was discussed.

Economic Stimulus Oversight: Brad Zieg said that he would be attending these City of Denver meetings headed by Amy Mueller as INC’s representative.

Bylaws: INC Secretary Dave Felice is coming back from vacation and will update the INC Bylaws.

Board of Adjustment (BOA): Citizen’s Advisory Committee member Harriet Hogue suggests that the new Zoning Code will empower the zoning desk personnel to make decisions that may belong before the BOA. The EC’s concern is that if the BOA is out of the loop, RNOs will never be notified.

Neighborhoods USA: Mike Henry mentioned that he had just been contacted by a neighborhood group in Commerce City that is a member of a national organization called Neighborhoods USA (NUSA) and recommended that INC should investigate joining NUSA. The Commerce City member told Mike that he had just returned from a national conference of NUSA in Washington State where 500 attended from all around the country and that 1,500 attended the previous year when economic times were better. The organization’s website is www.nusa.org.

New Business:

Recommendation for a Grant Writing Committee: At this point, the option of having a Grant Writing Committee was proposed. It was agreed that the INC Delegates should be encouraged to form such a committee with the support of the Executive Committee members. Karen recommended looking at CANPO Denver’s web site to check out their options for grant writing. Brad recommended the Community Resource Center.

Donations to other Organizations: Mike said Debbie Ortego asked if RNOs and INC could help thrift stores with donations through their garage sales. ARC was her specific focus.

Upcoming INC Delegates Meetings: INC Chair Karen Cuthbertson gave everyone a handout about upcoming INC meetings. All meeting dates and topics are posted on INC’s website.

The meeting was adjourned at 9:00 p.m.
Overland Park – Lots of future developments are coming our way such as restructuring of the Evans/Broadway intersection and widening of Evans Avenue from Broadway to Santa Fee. Our yard-sale is set for September 12th. The Shattuck site (5.9 acres) has been purchased but we are not sure what is coming yet (hopefully a grocery store). Two plots in OPNA have been offered for community gardens and we are in need of development help and start-up.

Southwest Improvement Council (SWIC) – We are having a new team of neighborhood volunteers called the Trailblazers who will take back our community, block by block, from the gangs, taggers, thieves, rapists, sexual predators, vandal, and the like.

Stapleton United Neighbors (SUN) – The new Denver Public Library construction at town center was approved, the new recreation center construction begins this summer, the I-70/Central Park Boulevard interchange was approved with a bridge over I-70 including a bike and a pedestrian path, the block party day was a big success with over 40 parties on a Saturday in May, the second-year community garden is in full bloom with a new vegetable and compost project, and we have a Farmer’s Market every weekend at Founder’s Green.

Transition Denver – The Mile-high Business Alliance, the Denver Botanic Gardens, and the Living Earth Center created the Grow Local Colorado campaign. Mayor Hickenlooper proclaimed May 14th “Grow Local Day” and spearheaded a vegetable garden in Civic Center Park. Representatives from the campaign as well as Denver Urban Gardens, Slow Food, and Feed Denver planted the garden on May 28th. One of the goals of the campaign is to encourage 2,009 new gardens in 2009 and have 500 gardens registered as of late June. Register your garden at www.growlocalcolorado.org and learn more about upcoming events, films, and resources about growing locally.

University Park – The Annual July 4th Picnic, in front of Chamberlain Observatory (East Warren Avenue between South Milwaukee and South Fillmore Streets) will have a parade at 10:00 a.m., a VFW band, fire station pumper trucks – a good, old fashioned tradition. We have formed a committee to look at how the plan affects our neighborhood and conforms to our Small Area Plan.

Do you enjoy walking in your neighborhood’s urban parks? Would you like to invite other walkers and groups to share one-or-more-walking-group conversations with you and your neighbors on topics you would enjoy exploring together?

Now more than ever before, it is much easier for you to organize your own collaborative small walking-group-conversation in your favorite urban park. Now you can go online and schedule or join an urban park walk on the free meetup.com registration site for topictalkwalks.com. Most walks are associated with a wide variety of before- or after-walk events that are sometimes related to the topic. Some of the events include a potluck picnic, snacks, a planetarium presentation, a garden tour, or a concert. Fran Rew volunteers to work with TTW Assistant Organizers to help them create the collaborative TTW walk of their choice.

Lead your own walking group conversation. Contact Fran at 303-321-1064 or info@TopicTalkWalks.com.

Mayor John Hickenlooper is asking citizens for input on the City’s 2010 budget. Attend the last scheduled budget meeting or complete the survey at www.denvergov.org.

The City has taken a number of steps already to cut costs and find efficiencies including: reducing the size of the City’s fleet; consolidating the City’s payroll function; reducing the number of positions hired; scheduling furlough days; reducing pay increases for City workers; and centralizing finance functions. The City must trim $70 million over the next 18 months to balance the budget.

For additional information or to share your feedback, send an e-mail to heather.barry@denvergov.org or call 311.

On June 18, the DPS Board of Education voted to begin a disposition process for four vacant facilities and a bus terminal in northeast Denver. DPS staff has begun a process to consider options for sale or long-term lease to institutional, commercial, residential, or mixed-use developers or other interested parties. DPS intends to begin a process of disposition with three former schools, now vacant properties: the Byers facility, the Gove facility, and the Remington facility.

For the properties approved for disposition at the June 18th Board of Education meeting, DPS will actively seek additional community input. Over the summer, DPS will host at least one community input meeting specific to each property. Area residents, neighborhood associations, elected officials, community leaders, and other stakeholders will be invited to provide their feedback related to their neighborhood vision and ideal uses for each building.

Stakeholders will be notified of the community input meeting(s) in their area approximately two weeks in advance. They will receive either a mailed letter or an email communication that includes the meeting date, time, and location. Meeting information will also be posted in advance at www.dpsk12.org. For more information, visit http://communications.dpsk12.org/initiatives/disposition-of-vacant-buildings/.

State of the City Address
Mayor’s Office

Mayor Hickenlooper invites you to attend the State of the City Address on July 14th from 8 to 9 a.m. in the Greek Theater in Civic Center Park. You are encouraged to take public transportation. However, if you do plan to drive, parking is free until 10 a.m. in the Cultural Center Garage at 12th and Acoma streets.

All-mail Ballot
City Clerk and Recorder

Denver Clerk and Recorder Stephanie O’Malley, spurred by fiscal constraints, announced that the November 3rd Coordinated Election will be conducted by mail. Conducting a mail-ballot election will cost less than a polling-place election. The November 3rd election ballot will contain school board races and, potentially, initiated ordinances.

Denver voters can assist the Elections Division’s preparation for this mail ballot election by making sure that the address information on their voter-record is correct. To check their record, voters can go the Colorado Secretary of State’s election website at www.sos.state.co.us and click on “Verify Your Voter/Ballot Status” or call 311.

Under a recent change in state law, ballots will be mailed to voters beginning 22 days prior to the election and voters can check their record, voters can go the Colorado Secretary of State’s election website at www.sos.state.co.us and click on “Verify Your Voter/Ballot Status” or call 311.

You can Grasscycle successfully!
- Mow you lawn when it is dry
- Keep your mower blades sharp.
- Follow the “1/3 Rule”- mow you lawn often enough so that no more than 1/3 of the length of the grass blade is cut and left on the lawn. Lawns are most healthy when left a little longer and mowed at 2½ to 3 inches.

You can Grasscycle with any mower. The mower collection bag should be removed to allow clippings to drop on the lawn. However, if for some reason your mower does not have a safety flap covering the opening where the bag fits into the chute, it is important that you purchase a retrofit kit from your hardware store. If you use a landscape service, ask them to leave the clippings on your lawn.

Grasscycling does not cause thatch; thatch is brown, spongy materials consisting of dead grass stems and roots, not the top clippings of the grass. Grass clippings break down quickly and can benefit the worms and organisms that help to maintain healthy soil. So why not try Grasscycling for a few weeks and see what you think. Your lawn will thank you for it! For more information on Grasscycling or other Denver Recycles programs, please call 311 or visit denvergov.org/denverrecycles.

Recycler’s Corner
Tom Strickland, Solid Waste Management

Grasscycle: Feed your lawn for free and make less trash; eliminate the bagging, hauling, and disposal of grass clippings by leaving them on your lawn. Grasscycling is the practice of leaving grass clippings on your lawn when mowing instead of bagging them. It is the natural way to recycle grass and provide your lawn with the valuable nutrients and water that it needs. Grasscycling can save you a lot of labor and you’ll end up with a healthier lawn. Why grasscycle?

Make Less Trash - Up to 37-percent of what Denver residents put in the trash during the growing season is yard waste composed predominantly of grass clippings. You can significantly reduce your spring and summer waste just by grasscycling.

Enjoy a Healthier Lawn - Grasscycling is a great way to recycle valuable nutrients for free. Clippings break down quickly and slowly release nutrients like nitrogen back into the soil beneath your lawn.

Save Water - Grasscycling can also help you save on your water bill. Grasscycling reduces the need to water your lawn as often because grass clippings are made up of more than 50-percent water that is returned to your lawn as they break down.

Reduce Your Work - Grasscycling can drastically reduce the time you spend on lawn care by eliminating the hassle of bagging, raking, and disposing of grass clippings.

Save Money - Grasscycling reduces the amount the City must spend to collect, haul, and landfill grass clippings.

There are a lot of myths about recycling passed along from person to person. We are here to explain some of those myths so you can be the best recycler possible.

Myth: Recycling should pay for itself. Cities get rich off the sale of materials.

False. It is a common misperception that the revenue generated from the sale of recovered materials should be enough to off-set the collection and processing costs and Home Energy Use
By Mary Monaghan

Since 1997, Lightly Treading has been performing home energy audits throughout Colorado via a relationship with Xcel Energy. Lightly Treading would be happy to attend your RNO’s meeting to educate your homeowners about energy use and describe steps that can be taken to reduce energy consumption, ultimately lowering utility bills while making homes more comfortable— even without changing the homeowner’s lifestyle. The presentation addresses topics such as insulation, lighting, windows, water heaters, furnaces, and much more. For groups of ten or more, Xcel Energy will sponsor the event. For smaller groups a fee may apply. For more information, please visit www.lightlytreading.com or call 303-733-3078, ext 305.

Zoning and Planning
By Diana Helper

The INC Zoning and Planning (ZAP) committee met June 27th. Those present talked briefly about neighborhood concerns—other than those regarding environmental and zoning code issues to be discussed later. Luann Rudolph and Abel Chavez of CU-Denver’s Sustainable Urban Infrastructure program talked about using engineering and planning methods in their National Science Grant program. It will assist communities with greenhouse-gas foot printing using a holistic approach. It will model for future energy demands and mitigation and include on-the-ground projects such as creating electric power from waste material and development of “green” concrete with less cement content. The “Realtor Project,” with help from ZAP’s Don Tressler, encourages home buyers and sellers to profit from green incentives and discount programs. The “Meter Project” demonstrates, via a read-out in your home, how much energy you are using and its cost. This information will be compared to the same prior period before you had a meter to give you this data.

Scott Morrissey, of the Greenprint Denver initiative in the Mayor’s Office, spoke of work underway giving citizen guidelines regarding energy use, recycling, rebates, and more. Referrals include websites for Greenprint Denver, Xcel Energy, and Denver Water. ZAP member suggested guideline information be distributed to RNOs, that there be follow-up reports after neighborhood “Blitz” programs, and that 311 be sure to have helpful information.

Dana Miller and Carol McFadden are of Transition Denver, part of a worldwide movement with offices in all fifty states. One of its programs is Grow Local Colorado, promoting registration of 2,009 gardens in 2009. The Platt Park area is active in Transition Denver. A committee meets the third Thursday monthly at 6:30 p.m. at the local Whole Foods on topics including recycling, conservation, trash, and such Zoning Code matters as garden space, “green” roofs, and attention to bike and pedestrian transport. This gives a voice for neighbors eager to Transition as a community.

James Bertini spoke about the effort to enable citizens to keep chickens and goats. Please visit denverbackyardfarms.org or denverbackyardfarms.com for more information.

Discussion of the draft Zoning Code (ZC) began with comments by Scott Morrissey about a study of the ZC to see just what it includes regarding solar access. Tyler Gibbs said the Planning Office is building computer models to test through day and year to determine solar access on varying lot types. Results must be available before the ZC can be completed. ZAP members stated that as the draft stands, there is less solar access than the present ZC allows. Differentiation between passive and active solar is needed. There were comments about new setbacks, alley size, maintenance of living things, apparent codification of illegal behavior, reality of power/water supplies for zoned future density, need for more open space to match more population, the need to track changes being made in the present draft, many comments regarding the new ZC maps, and the lack of sufficient time provided to study and work out neighborhood residents’ concerns.

ZAP will revisit the ZC at its August meeting. The next meeting of ZAP will be July 25.
Please use the parking lot immediately west of the building (the entrance is off of Madison St.). The gate automatically opens.

Area recreation centers offer a variety of summer activities including open swim, basketball, game room, and a Food Bank of the Rockies program that offers free food for families. Programs available for a nominal fee include “Hoopin’ with Hickenlooper,” baseball, t-ball, volleyball, and swim lessons.

Opening the recreation centers to all Denver youth this summer complements the My Place program launched in 2008. This program gives Denver Public Schools students the opportunity for a free one-year membership to their neighborhood recreation center. To date, more than 15,000 kids have taken advantage of that program.

Denver residents may locate their nearest recreation center by visiting www.denvergov.org/parks_recreation and clicking on “Recreation.”

again this year until Kaiser Permanente offered a generous $150,000 donation to help support the program.

Free admission begins Saturday, June 27th and will run through Saturday, August 15th. Standard fees will continue to apply for programs and activities that typically are offered at an additional charge.

Last year, the City offered free access to recreation centers and swimming pools from June 2nd to August 17th. There were 214,740 visits by youth during that time – an increase of 108,240 visits (98-percent) from the number of visits in 2007.
